Dependent Student’s Special Circumstances – for completion by student & parent(s)

Independent Student’s Special Circumstances – for completion by student & spouse

Per federal financial aid regulations, a dependent student and family’s (or an independent student and spouse’s -if applicable) 2023 income is used to determine financial need for the 2025-2026 school year. If there are special circumstances (see below), a financial aid administrator may be able to make adjustments to use final calendar year 2024 year end income or use projected calendar year 2025 income to determine financial aid eligibility.

Student’s Name Student ID

Student Address City State Zip

Student Phone Cell phone E-mail

Parent’s Name(s) If Applicable Phone

Parent Address City State Zip

Mark the reason(s) that 2023 family income may need to be adjusted.

A. Reduction in earnings or loss of other income. Student and/or Parent (and/or spouse if student is independent) who received income in 2023 has experienced a reduction in income for 2023 or 2024. This could include a reduction in earnings or loss of employment, benefits, child support, other taxed or untaxed income or dramatic fluctuations in annual income (such as a farmer or rancher whose income may be abnormally high one year due to commodity price fluctuation).

How To Document:

1. Attach a detailed narrative/explanation of circumstances relating to this request (i.e.: what income was lost or reduced, the date the change became effective, and the reasons for the loss) in addition to items requested on the appropriate income chart.
2. Mark the answer to this question: “My change in income or situation occurred in...”
 - Calendar Year 2023 or 2024: (now only complete INCOME CHART A on page 3)
 - Calendar Year 2025: (now only complete INCOME CHART B on page 4)
 - Calendar Year 2026: (now only complete INCOME CHART B on page 4)
3. Provide documentation to substantiate the data you record on the applicable income chart.

What Will Happen:

If approved, this procedure changes the tax year used for the 2025-25 FAFSA from 2023 to either 2024 or 2025, depending on when the circumstance(s) occurred.

B. Divorce or separation. After completing the FAFSA, you (or your parents if dependent) divorced or separated or, the IRS Data Retrieval Tool imported joined income that is no longer accurate.

How To Document:

1. Attach a detailed narrative/explanation of circumstances relating to this request. Include the date of divorce/separation.
2. Provide documentation of your 2023 gross income if you are the person who became divorced/separated (or if you are dependent, your custodial parent’s if they are the person who became divorced/separated). Ex. IRS tax return transcript, W-2’s, and in some cases schedules C, D, E, F etc. from the federal return.
3. Attach a copy of the divorce decree (if the divorce is final).

What Will Happen:

If approved, this procedure modifies the 2023 tax year by only removing a spouse’s (or parent’s) income. Your income/data (and your custodial parent’s, if dependent) remains unchanged.

- C. Death of a spouse (or parent if dependent). After completing the FAFSA your spouse (or a parent if dependent) has passed away.

How To Document:

1. Attach a detailed narrative/explanation of circumstances relating to this request. Include the date of the death.
2. Provide documentation of your 2023 gross income if you are the person whose spouse has passed away (or your surviving parent's if they are the person whose spouse passed away). Ex. IRS tax return transcript, W-2's, and in some cases schedules C, D, E, F, etc. from the federal return.
3. Attach a copy of the death certificate.

What Will Happen:

If approved, this procedure modifies the 2023 tax year by only removing a spouse's (or parent's) income. Your income/data (and your surviving parent's, if dependent) remains unchanged.

- D. One-time income. Occasionally a student or parent of a dependent student may receive uncharacteristic income that was reported on the FAFSA. Examples may include, but not limited to, inheritance, atypical or one-time bonus, personal injury settlement, catch-up payments of child support owed from previous years, unusual capital gains, worker's compensation buyouts, or the conversion of a regular IRA into a Roth IRA.)

Note: special consideration cannot be made for any income or assets that were spent on personal-choice items or everyday family expenses such as vacation expenses, tithing expenses, children's allowances, car payments, lawn care, gambling losses, mortgage payments, student loan payments or credit card payments. Additionally, adjustments are not made to exclude assets that were transferred to the parent to enable a grandparent to qualify for Medicaid.

How To Document:

1. Attach a detailed narrative/explanation of circumstances relating to this request.
2. Provide documentation of the one-time payment from an official source (notification from employer of atypical bonus, IRS form 1099-R indicating a pension or annuity rollover, lump sum child support payment, court-appointed legal settlements, etc.).

What Will Happen:

If approved, this procedure modifies the 2023 tax year by removing the one-time income. All other income/data remains unchanged.

- E. Significant nondiscretionary expenses previously paid during the current or prior award year, such as previously paid net medical bills not covered by insurance (defined as already paid by you or parent, but unreimbursed by insurance), elementary/secondary school tuition, or unusually high child care, dependent, or elder care. If the family went into debt to pay these expenses, only the amounts paid by the family against the debt during the year (including any debt service payments of interest and principle) may be considered when adjusting income. The remaining debt may be considered as an offset to assets.

How To Document:

1. Attach a detailed narrative/explanation of circumstances relating to this request.
2. Provide documentation to support the narrative/explanation & substantiate previously paid amounts within the applicable tax year.
3. If the family went into debt to pay these expenses, provide documentation to demonstrate the amounts paid by the family against the debt during the year (including any debt service payments of interest and principle).

What Will Happen:

Federal methodology used to calculate an Expected Family Contribution (EFC) protects a certain percentage of family income for living expenses through Income Protection Allowances (IPA). In the event that substantiated expenses exceed this allowance, adjustments may be made to the student's Expected Family Contribution (EFC) or Cost of Attendance (COA). No adjustments will be made to a student's EFC or COA if the expense does not exceed the IPA or if expenses have not already been paid and determined to be unreimbursed by insurance. If eligible, the procedure may decrease the EFC or increase the COA.
